TRUE BEAUTY.

'Tis not the auburn lock of hair,
That plays in ringlets round the fair;
'Tis not her cheek o'erspread with smiles;
'Tis not her voice which care beguiles;
'Tis not her lips with roses dress'd,
Where vagrant bees would fondly rest;
'Tis not her blue eyes' thrilling glance;
'Tis not her feet that tread the dance;
'Tis not the grace with which they move,
That warms my heart with ardent love.

But 'tis her finely polish'd mind,
By Virtue's rarest rules refin'd;
Like Hesper at the eve of day,
When Sol emits his latest ray;
Modest and meek without pretence
To other charms than charms of sense—
To charms which shine when beauty fades,
And wrinkled age the form invades—
To these a lovely maid aspires,
And these awake my bosom's fires;
For they can warm my throbbing heart,
Without the aid of fancy's art.

When time uplifts his palying hand,
And strikes the visage with his wand;
When cheeks no more with ard' r glow,
And silver'd curls resemble snow;
When eyes have lost their humid clue,
And lips have chang'd their rosy hue;
Ah! then how weak is Beauty's power,
To charm the slowly passing hour.

EDWIN.

Edinburgh Review.—From the same number of this valuable periodical work from which we gave an interesting extract in yesterday's paper, we now present another:

"The rest of M. Macrone's work contains an account of what befel himself upon his return from Corsica, whither he had been sent by prince Meternich and Sir C. Stewart, with the offer of an asylum to Murat. On his arrival at Marseilles, he was arrested by M. de Rivere, and grossly reviled by him, for having been an adherent of Murat, and having obtained for him the protection of Austria. He was then, though acting under the authority of passports and credentials exhibited to the marquis, and admitted by him to be perfectly regular, thrown into a dungeon, and treated with the greatest harshness. In this state he was kept for about three weeks, and then sent a prisoner to Paris, where after strict examinations, according to the truly inquisitorial forms of the French proceedings, he was finally set at liberty.

"During these examinations, he was interrogated as to the circumstances of Berthier's decease, and having mentioned that he had heard of his having been put to death by orders, he was told that there was a connexion supposed to have been traced between that event and the mysterious death of a great personage at Paris, in October or November, 1814. M. Menars, secretary of M. de Cazes, the minister of police, in order to obtain from him what he knew, said 'that a great personage had died at Paris, under circumstances of the greatest mystery, privacy and suspicion. That his death, &c. had been witnessed, and at that time had been known only to two individuals. He added that the death of this personage, and the murder of Berthier, were most particularly connected, and that one was the consequence of the other.' M. Macrone answered that all he knew of Berthier's death was, the fact of its not having been accidental; but he adds in a note the following very extraordinary particulars, respecting the other death mentioned by M. Menars, having learnt them since his examination.—We do not pretend to be in possession of the key of the mystery; and must add, that the story does not strike us as being over and above credible.

"About the month of October or November, 1814, a reputable mid-wife was accosted in the streets of Paris, near the church of St. Sulpice, by two strangers, who it would seem were acquainted with her profession, as they invited her to accompany them to the house of a person who was in need of her assistance. As the present case frequently occurs at Paris, and was by no means new to the mid-wife she consented without opposition, to be blindfolded, and in that state to be conveyed in a coach with the two strangers. They conversed with her as the coach drove on, she knew not whither; but the motion and the sound enabled her to perceive that it made frequent turnings, and that at length it rolled through a gate, and into a spacious court, where it stopped at the foot of a staircase, under a vestibule. She was now led out of the coach and after having uncovered her eyes, the two strangers conducted her into a low room, (catalina,) when she beheld extended upon a bed, and apparently at the point of dissolution, a man who gave no other signs of life than those of a short and difficult respiration, interrupted by faint but frequent hiccups. His face was pale and bloated; his lips swollen and black; on a chair near the bed was thrown an embroidered coat or uniform, decorated with a star, and with several rubans of different orders of knighthood.

"The two strangers who had introduced the mid-wife to this scene, now proceeded to desist, and she would bleed the unhappy man who lay before her. She excused herself on the plea of being unskilful in the operation and unprovided with a lancet. The men persisted in their injunctions, and produced a lancet. She was thus forced to comply;—on which the dying man opened his eyes. At this moment one of the assistants left the room, for some necessary application, and before he returned, the other was led to do the like, to learn the cause of some noise which it appears alarmed him. It was then that the wretched victim with difficulty, and in a feeble tone, pronounced the name of Berthier. He looked as though he would proceed; Vain effort! His black and tumid lips in silence quivered; his inflamed and glaring eyes rolled in horrid anguish;—then closed forever.

"The poisoned man had no sooner expired, than the mid-wife in compliance with the orders of the strangers, sewed up the body in a sheet, which, after having accomplished, and being again blindfolded, she was conveyed from this mysterious and horrid scene in the same manner as she had been brought thither.

"These particulars of this mysterious death which is undoubtedly the same to which M. Menars alludes, formed the subject of a solemn deposition upon oath, made before the minister of police, by the mid-wife who had been so strangely employed. I must add that this account of her is implicitly believed by those who are the most competent judges of her character and credibility; and who, besides, being acquainted with much more of the matter than I have related, see the connexion which this dismal paragraph holds with the rest of the story. For my part, I do not think myself warranted, at the present moment in saying any thing further. My readers must be aware, that to dwell on a subject, from which such serious allegation might be deduced, would be highly inconsistent, both with prudence and with justice."

[It requires a considerable share of good natured credulity to believe this story. We must first I think relinquish the current opinion, that men never act without motives.]

LEND ME YOUR PAPER.

The borrowing of newspapers has become a serious evil, not only to printers in general, but to subscribers. Our patrons frequently complain, that they are obliged to pay for the gratification of others; that as soon as their papers are delivered, some officious neighbor seizes upon them before they have had time to peruse a word. Now there are but two reasonable excuses for borrowing;—the want of money to purchase the article borrowed or the inability of procuring it in market.—Neither of these pleas can ordinarily serve the man who gratifies his curiosity in reading a newspaper at the expense of his neighbor. 1st. Because there is no one in a thousand of these news-mongers, who is not able to pay without the least inconvenience, ten times the price demanded for a paper. 2d. Because a dearth of this article is never known in our markets. He who is continually borrowing furniture, or the most necessary implements of trade, especially if it be known that he is able to procure them for himself, is justly regarded by mankind as a contemptible sponger;—a penurious wretch. How much more contemptible and miserly must he be, who feeds his curiosity upon the avails of another's industry and generosity.

Somebody praising Mr. Hamilton as a well read man, Foote said he did not see much of that about him. "I grant he reads a great many proofs; but these are no proofs of his reading."

ALEXANDRIA: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1817.

Certain societies and religious sects, (the Quakers for instance) provide very successfully for the maintenance of their purity by expelling from them all incorrigible sinners and malefactors. That excellent expedient might be carried with advantage into the regulations of other bodies who never think of it, and possibly never think of purification as necessary, because purity is in the nature of things itself presupposed. The principle that kings can do no wrong, though in its place a more valuable political device than many will allow, may possibly have the effect, in some cases of hoodwinking their majesties, of inducing them to consider as a literal truth that which political wisdom established only as a salutary fiction, and of filling them with the persuasion that by virtue of the mere name of king, the purity of the man is put beyond the reach of doubt or accident. It is rather unfortunate that at the very time when, more than ever, the correctness of that principle, either as a moral truth or a political fiction, is called in question, and it has become the bon ton of the political world to think kings no better than other men, the character of that excellent office, should be tarnished, and that the efforts of such virtuous men as Alexander and Louis to confer lustre on it by their virtues, should be defeated by the unexampled baseness and folly of a stupid and malignant bigot, who seems, too, as regardless of the qualities, now indispensably necessary to support a king and steer him clear of contempt and abhorrence, as any of the worst Roman emperors.

Would it not then be worth the consideration of the majority of the kings of Europe, or can there be imagined a project more truly wise, or more worthy of the members of the Holy Alliance—one more truly legitimate, or more suited to the character of kings, as kings ought to be, than, profiting for once by the example of their inferiors, to adopt the purifying plan of the Quakers, and make it a rule to expel from their body any member of it whose vices and follies reflect upon it shame and disgrace. It is not possible that any sovereign in Europe can view without scorn and abhorrence the conduct of Ferdinand.—Why do they not, then, as in the case of Bonaparte they did, inform him at once that he must cease to disgrace the kingly office, and if he disobeys, coerce him—unkind him—shave his head—send him into a convent, and place upon the throne of Spain, some one or other that will not be a curse to that unhappy nation, and a sore as he is, to every one, and every thing he touches.

It is a truth—a deplorable and a disgraceful one to our species—but still a truth, that to be supremely, independently, and pertinaciously base and mischievous is the way to extort from the world the privilege of continuing to be so, unresisted and unquestioned. It would seem as if Ferdinand felt this, and on the strength of it committed acts of wrong, which no other king would dare to think of;—as if, like the fools and daws which it was once the fashion for great men to keep about them, he thought himself entitled by the courtesy of his masters, and in virtue of his imbecility and littleness, to commit every trespass and mischief that insanity or malice may suggest to his diseased imagination. If, like Domitian or Tiberius, or Caligula Nero or Commodus, he chooses to crush his subjects, to destroy the foolish brave men who restored him, and to cut off by the cruel execution of burning alive some of the best men in his dominions, still the sovereigns of Europe, however they may be shocked at his profligacy, may think they have no right to interfere—but, that he should dare to imprison an American citizen, at the time acting with him as Vice-Consul to this country, we mean Mr. Meade—that he should dare to keep the said Meade, by the confession of his (Ferdinand's) own appointed authorities—without any just grounds, for years in prison—sacrificing (to use our envoy, Mr. Irvine's words) the liberty, fortune, health, and domestic happiness of an innocent man, and blasting the hope of a respectable family, is such an outrage as the nation, against whom it has been committed should not bear, and all the nations of Europe ought to concur in reprobating and resenting. Surrounded by crafty monks and statesmen, the tyrant plumes himself no doubt on insulting and baffling by evasion the just demands of this country. They remind him how unavailing all our requisitions and remonstrances have been rendered by his majesty's magnanimous disregard of them—they tell him that enthroned in his palace, and secure in the mazes of regal retirement (like Thompson the poet's window-dweller,

Where gloomily retir'd,
The villain spider lives, cunning and fierce,
Mixure abhor'd!)

he may bid defiance to the representations and threats of the railing republicans of the United States—rob them, incarcerate their officers, and insult themselves by contemptuous silence—for it must be evident to his majesty and to the world that they dare not, though they wished to do it, venture to provoke him, by receiving the envoys of his rebel subjects.—Thus will they say, and thus will he believe, and continue to act, till our government takes the argument out of their mouths, and drives the imposture out of his head by receiving these envoys, and by retaliating on some high Spanish subject of consequence in this country, the imprisonment of Mr. Meade. When the Spaniards half a century ago, committed a very slight trespass on the English at the Falkland Islands, the gallant admiral Saunders exclaimed in the House of Commons that it was a national insult for which MADRID LAY IN ASHES would be scarcely sufficient atonement.—We hope, may we believe that his assinine majesty will find us not less indignant at an insult, though not quite so hasty as the hot-headed British admiral, and that though we would not burn down Madrid, we will have just satisfaction for the imprisonment of our consul and for our other wrongs.

Augusta, (Geo.) Sept. 19.
Extract of a letter from J. L. Ledge to a gentleman of this place, dated September 11, 1817.

"We have nothing new, except that General Gaines meditated an attack on the Seminole Indians the 50th of last month, and with this view made a requisition on our executive for 1,000 militia to assist him; but owing to some fatality, the letter containing the requisition did not come to hand till yesterday. Whether he has abandoned the enterprise in consequence of not receiving this auxiliary force, we have yet to learn."

Charleston, Sept. 24.
General Gaines has required of the governor of Georgia a detachment of the militia of that state; to consist of one battalion of riflemen, and one battalion of light or mounted infantry, to aid the troops under his command in an expected contest with the Seminole Indians.

FROM HAVANA.
By the brig Maria, captain Vincent, from Havana, which arrived at quarantine last evening, we learn that in answer to a late application of some merchants of that place, to the intendante, respecting the tonnage of American vessels, they were informed it would not at present be reduced. This duty amounted to 180,000 dollars the last year. Accounts had been received of the safe delivery of the queen of Spain of a son. Havana had become quite healthy, the yellow fever having entirely subsided. Markets—rice 93 dollars; flour 16, and very plenty; molasses 104 cents; coffee 14 cents; sugar 7 a 10 dollars.

Norfolk, Sept. 26.
ARRIVAL OF THE CONGRESS.

On Wednesday last arrived in Lynnhaven Bay the United States' frigate Congress, Charles Morris, Esq. commander, from a cruise on the coast of South America. The Congress, after leaving Cape Henry, (Hayti) cruized along the Main, touching at Margarita, Cumana, Barcelona, and last at Lagayra, from whence she sailed for the United States, and arrived as before stated, in a passage of 18 days. The Congress will put into this port. We have not been able to obtain the particulars of her cruise for this morning's paper. From a gentleman who came up from her yesterday, however, we have collected the foregoing, and also learn that there had been a hard fought and bloody engagement between the Spaniards under Morillo, and the Patriots under Gomez, at Assumption, in the island of Margarita. Morillo had previously taken Pompatar and another small place, and Gomez had retreated to Assumption, where he was attacked by the Royalists, but defeated them with great slaughter, driving Morillo to his shipping, in which he embarked with the wreck of his army, and sailed for Lagayra, where he arrived a few days before the Congress sailed, and marched immediately for Caracas. We give this as an imperfect sketch, calculating on receiving a more detailed and correct statement in time for our next.

Since writing the above, the Congress has come up and anchored in the bay of Craney Island.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.
After the foregoing was in type, we were politely favored with the following details:

The United States' frigate Congress anchored above Craney Island last evening. During her late cruise she visited Porto-au-Prince and Cape Francois, in both of which places every attention was shown by the officers of government, and supplies readily furnished. She afterwards touched at Pompatar, in the island of Margarita, and at Cumana, Barcelona and Lagayra, on the Main. General Morillo, with the royal army, had left Pompatar for Cumana four days previous to the arrival of the Congress, without having effected the reduction of the island. He had, however, destroyed nearly all the cultivation, and most of the useful animals, having fought five battles, and approached in different directions very near to Assumption, the capital of the island. The islanders defended themselves with the greatest bravery, but attributed the departure of Morillo to the progress of Bolivar and the Patriots of Guayana, rather than to their own strength. Morillo took with him to Margarita about 3,500 Spanish troops, and from the best accounts lost 1,000 killed, wounded, and sick. The inhabitants of the island appear determined to defend themselves to the last extremity against Spain, but are very deficient in munitions of war. The Spanish royal force in Venezuela and its dependencies, and in New Grenada, are supposed to be about 6,000, besides from 2,000 to 3,000 Creek and Indian troops. Morillo is drawing all the forces that can be spared from the different garrisons to the city of Caracas, and it is thought intend proceeding soon to meet the Patriots before they enter the province of Caracas. His effective force for the field, which is composed of fine troops, and well officered, may be about 4,000, besides Creoles and Indians, say 2,000 more. The force of the Patriots is not well known, and was variously estimated, from 4,000 to 8,000 men. It is not probable they will hazard a general action, as they are very inferior in point of arms, discipline and skill, to the Spaniards, but superior in their ability to carry on a predatory warfare and manage attacks in small parties.

The provinces of Cumana and Barcelona are nearly desolated. Their population is supposed not to equal one half its former numbers. In the cities of Cumana and Barcelona it does not amount to one fourth, and these in the greatest misery and distress. The Congress was not able to procure fresh meat or vegetables of any description at other places, and at Lagayra a few vegetables and a little fresh meat was obtained with difficulty.

The provinces of Varinas and Caracas have suffered less than the others, though their population is very greatly diminished—the city of Caracas does not contain one half its former numbers. The war is conducted by both parties on the most barbarous principle: it is the War of Death. Prisoners are not made, except to suffer death in a different form, and not even women or children are exempted from the general destruction, when in any manner connected with the contending parties.

The Congress was visited by the governor of Margarita, by general Morillo, and by most of the principal officers of his army; and in all their ports where she touched, every civility was shown, and every accommodation offered in their power to grant.

The very unsettled state of the country, and the ravages of the war, have nearly suspended all commercial operations. Except in the province west of Barcelona, there is no cultivation, and the products of the others are but small to what they were formerly.

New-York, Sept. 26.
By the brig British Tar, from Demerara, the editors of the N. York Mercantile Advertiser received the Guiana Chronicle and Demerara Gazette, of the 15th of August, from which the following extracts were made:

Georgetown, (Demerara) Aug. 15.
We have received some intelligence respecting the state of affairs on the Orinoco—and we have reason to depend upon its correctness. The substance of our correspondent's letter, which is dated at Pomeroon on the evening of the 10th instant, is, that more than 100 Spanish fugitives from Guiana, had arrived there within the three previous days, under circumstances of the most deplorable nature. Deprived of all their property, their families and friends becoming a prey to famine and the sword—with misery in prospective too shocking to contemplate, these wretches resolved to cling to the only remaining hold that appeared likely to prolong their existence, and to throw themselves upon the protection of a people, whose humanity and benevolence were never injured in vain! Among the emigrants arrived at Pomeroon, there are several brave eighty years of age—one is 92. The accounts they give of the country are lamentable in the extreme. Distress under its most hideous form reigns absolute. The flesh of mules, horses, dogs and other animals, is thought a luxury, and bears a monstrous price. August is not having yet fallen, as was remarkably represented in the American prints, is in a most peculiar manner subjected to drought. It is closely blockaded by 15 vessels—supplies are by them cut off from the inhabitants. A heavy engagement took place on the last month, between these vessels and Royalist squadron; each party claiming victory; but as the Royalists did not succeed in forcing the passage, the Patriots manifestly had the best of the day, assistance from the king of Spain in that time, arrived in the Orinoco.

It will be recollected, that Fitzgovernor of Augustura, was some time ago accused of treachery, and so Morillo, the governor general of the viceroy, to meet his fate. It would appear that he has been honorably acquitted of the charge, since he is again Augustura, acting as before. Governor of Fort Guiana, who was taken prisoner by the patriots, was five days after. The commandant rines, named Echenique, a man of play character, & very highly esteemed throughout the country, shared the fate.

From the Boston Palladium, Aug. 15.
Returned to Marblehead, on Monday last, the schooner Regulator, Worcester, which had sailed from that port for Grand Bank. On the 11th, at leagues east of Cape Ann, she fell in with a Spanish privateer brig or bomb vessel, having lost her bowsprit, and mast badly sprung, and 3 feet water her hold. The crew of the brig, in consequence of her distressed situation, determined to leave her, the taken on board the R. as well as her cargo, viz: about 50 boxes sugar, bags coffee, a few ox hides, and the materials of the vessel. She then abandoned, the wind blowing fresh from the N. E. and unable to do any thing farther. The above boat was from Havana bound to Barcelona with a cargo of 260 boxes sugar, 100 coffee, 20 hides, etc. She sailed with a fleet of 11 sail, (bound to Malaga, Barcelona, &c.) under the command of Captain Aug. 7, off Florida, and was captured Aug. 7, off Florida, the privateer being Rio de la Plata, Captain Davy, and ordered for Buenos Ayres, under charge of one Gran Americano, (said to belong to Morillo) in consequence of the damage received, had gone away for the States. Her name is the N. S. de Saco, Capt. Jose Roldan. A Spanish officer, belonging to the ship who was brought into Marblehead in town on Wednesday, and commanded the above. He also states that the privateer had captured a brig bound to the same fleet, and ordered for Buenos Ayres—she was the German frigate, bound to Malaga, carrying boxes sugar, 200 boxes coffee, some wood, hides, etc. taken August 6.

The Buenos Ayres had parted from the fleet, which was conveyed to a lat. The privateer mounted 18 guns, had 170 men when she left port, whom had been put on board of 4. She had previously taken and ordered Buenos Ayres, two Spanish privateers (one the Dolores) from Malaga, Havana; cargoes wine, sweet oil, galls, olives, etc. Left the privateer pursuit of three sail. The Buenos Ayres spoke no American vessels.

The above privateer was formerly British brig Courier, purchased at Buenos Ayres. She left the river of June 16. Capt. Davy arrived at Buenos Ayres in March last, in the armed Clifton, from Baltimore.

The property brought in by the labor has been libelled by her crew owner. In the deposition it is that the principal navigator on board brig (Grant) appeared to be "a sound state of mind, and there person on board capable of navigation." The Spanish officer, above mentioned, states, that Grant had been state of intoxication for most of the since the vessel was captured.

The ship Harmony and scho reported at quarantine, have s in the American prints, is in a more particular manner subjected to the same. It is closely blockaded by 15 vessels stationed in a narrow passage a few miles below—supplies are by them entirely cut off from the inhabitants. A sanguinary engagement took place on the 7th of last month, between these vessels & the Royalist squadron; each party claims the victory; but as the Royalists did not succeed in forcing the passage, the Patriots manifestly had the best of the day. No assistance from the king of Spain had, at that time, arrived in the Orinoco.

It will be recollected, that Fitzgerald, governor of Augustura, was some months ago accused of treachery, and sent off to Morillo, the governor general of the province, to meet his fate. It would now appear that he has been honorably acquitted of the charge, since he is again at Augustura, acting as before. Ceruti, governor of Fort Guana, who was lately taken prisoner by the patriots, was shot five days after. The commandant of marines, named Echeique, a man of exemplary character, & very highly esteemed throughout the country, shared the same fate.

From the Boston Palladium, Aug. 19. Returned to Marblehead, on Monday last, the schr. Regulator, Wormstead, which had sailed from that port 9th inst. for Grand Bank. On the 11th, about 70 leagues east of Cape Ann, she fell in with a Spanish privateer brig or bombardier, in distress, having lost her bowsprit, foremast badly sprung, and 3 feet water in her hold. The crew of the brig, in consequence of her distressed situation, being determined to leave her, they were taken on board the R. as well as some of her cargo, viz. about 50 boxes sugar, 130 bags coffee, a few ox hides, and some of the materials of the vessel. She was then abandoned, the wind blowing very fresh from the N. E. and unable to save anything farther. The above bombardier was from Havana bound to Barcelona, with a cargo of 260 boxes sugar, 138 bbls coffee, 20 hides, etc. She sailed July 1, with a fleet of 11 sails (bound to Cadiz, Malaga, Barcelona, etc.) off Flores, and was captured Aug. 7, off Flores, by the Patriot privateer brig Rio de la Plata, Captain Day, and ordered for Buenos Ayres, under charge of one Grand, an American, (said to belong to Marblehead) in consequence of the damage she received, had bore away for the United States. Her name is the N. S. del Buer Suceso, Capt. Jose Roldan. A Spanish marine officer, belonging to the vessel, who was brought into Marblehead, was in town on Wednesday, and communicated the above. He also states that the privateer had captured a brig belonging to the same fleet, and ordered her for Buenos Ayres—she was the Gerona, Captain Cassa, bound to Malaga, cargo 1191 boxes sugar, 200 bags coffee, some logwood, hides, etc. taken August 5.

The Buen Suceso had parted from the fleet, which was conveyed to a certain lat. The privateer mounted 18 guns and had 170 men when she left port, 36 of whom had been put on board of 4 prizes. She had previously taken and ordered to Buenos Ayres, two Spanish privateer vessels (one the Dolores) from Malaga for Havana; cargoes wine, sweet oil, dry goods, olives, etc. Left the privateer in pursuit of three sail. The Buen Suceso spoke no American vessels.

The above privateer was formerly the British brig Countess, purchased at Buenos Ayres. She left the river of Plate June 16. Capt. Day arrived at Buenos Ayres in March last, in the armed ship Clifton, from Baltimore.

The property brought in by the Regulator has been labelled by her crew and owner. In the deposition it is stated, that the principal navigator on board the brig (Grant) appeared to be "in an unsteady state of mind, and there was no person on board capable of navigating her." The Spanish officer, above mentioned, states, that Grant had been in state of intoxication for most of the time since the vessel was manned.

Piscataway Property for Sale.
PURSUANT to a decree of Prince George's county court, sitting as a court of chancery, the subscriber, as trustee, appointed by the honorable judges thereof, will sell at public sale, in the town of Piscataway, on Friday, 3d October next, the following very valuable property, to wit:
A very handsomely improved and desirable lot at the lower end of the town, formerly the residence of the late Jacob Duckett, Esq. on which, besides a neat dwelling, is every other convenient house for a family.
Attached to this lot is an extremely commodious store house, of 30 by 27 feet, having a dry cellar of same dimensions, and granaries calculated to hold 6 or 7,000 bushels, with stabling for 4 horses. Adjoining this is a 7 or 8 acre lot, well enclosed, of rich soil, with a large barn and prize shed on it.
It not sooner disposed of by private sale, he will then offer at public sale, 9 or 10 acres of meadow land, now well set in timothy, and immediately adjoining the town. Also, 150 acres of land, distant about 3 miles therefrom, very heavily wooded. To those engaged in the carrying of wood to the District, this latter would be worth attention. ## James Kennedy & Son,

BOOKSELLERS.

KING-STREET, ALEXANDRIA.

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or gripping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terebra or large round worm; the Ascarides or small round-worm; the Cucurbitaria or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tania or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and loss of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of

BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS

is recommended

Hahn's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance; they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of
